Design Statement

This storyboard is based on the one piece anime, from which some of the names of the characters and places are derived. The theme is actually about three things, adventure, companionship and comedy, so I added a joke part to it. The reason why the characters in some scenes are not coloured is because I think the main characters are very emotionally charged, so even if they are not coloured they can still convey their feelings well. The same goes for portraits. Some people are suitable for sketches, some for coloured pencils, some for watercolours. And my characters are full of emotion and don't need colour too much.

Storyline (Summary)

In the town of Merrymeadows, Jack Jester, a mischievous thief, hears a rumour about the treasure box of King Bartholomew. Fuelled by curiosity and a desire for adventure, Jack sets off on a journey to steal the treasure. With his loyal companion, Snicker the squirrel, Jack braves the enchanted Forest of Whispers and encounters the grumpy gnome, Grumblebeard. Together, they overcome obstacles, share laughter, and navigate booby traps guarding the treasure. However, upon reaching the treasure chamber, they discover that the true treasure lies not in gold and jewels, but in bundles of joke books and comedy scripts. Jack realizes that the real wealth was the joy and laughter they experienced throughout their adventure. With hearts filled with laughter, Jack, Snicker, and Grumblebeard bid farewell, cherishing the memories they made.

Storyline

Once upon a time in the bustling town of Merrymeadows, there lived a mischievous yet lovable thief named Jack Jester. With his quick wit and nimble fingers, Jack was notorious for his audacious heists and elaborate pranks. The townsfolk regarded him with a mixture of annoyance and amusement, but they couldn't help but be captivated by his adventurous spirit.

One sunny morning, as Jack was sipping his favourite cup of stolen tea, he overheard a rumour that sent his heart racing with excitement. The legendary treasure box of King Bartholomew, filled with unimaginable riches and priceless artifacts, was said to be hidden deep within the enchanted Forest of Thriller Bark. Unable to resist the allure of such a grand adventure, Jack decided that he would be the one to steal the treasure.

With his mind set on the prize, Jack set out on his quest, armed with a peculiar combination of gadgets and a belly full of laughter. He knew that the journey to the Forest of Whispers would be treacherous, but he was determined to outwit any challenge that lay in his path.

Storyline

As Jack ventured deeper into the forest, the trees seemed to whisper secrets and the animals watched him curiously. He encountered a mischievous squirrel named Snicker who became his faithful companion. Snicker, with his acrobatic skills and penchant for practical jokes, added an extra layer of comedy to their daring escapades.

Their first obstacle came in the form of a rickety wooden bridge spanning a vast chasm. Jack, being the agile thief he was, skipped across effortlessly. However, Snicker, in his haste to follow, stumbled and sent the bridge into a wild wobble. Jack couldn't help but burst into laughter as Snicker clung to the bridge, his tiny paws scrambling for balance. With a swift flick of his wrist, Jack extended a helping hand, pulling Snicker to safety amid fits of laughter.

Their laughter echoed through the forest, awakening the curiosity of a mystical creature known as Grumblebeard, the grumpy guardian of the treasure. Grumblebeard, a cantankerous old gnome with a long, tangled beard, was known for his disdain for intruders. But Jack, with his uncanny ability to charm even the grumpiest of souls, won over the old gnome with his quick wit and infectious laughter.

Grumblebeard agreed to guide them through the treacherous forest, on the condition that they would share a few jokes along the way. Jack eagerly accepted, and soon the trio set off, exchanging jokes that sent them into fits of uproarious laughter.

Storyline

As they delved deeper into the heart of the forest, the obstacles grew more perilous. Jack and Snicker found themselves facing a series of booby traps designed to protect the treasure. But Jack's and Snicker's agility proved to be an unbeatable combination. They danced through the traps, each close call met with a hearty guffaw.

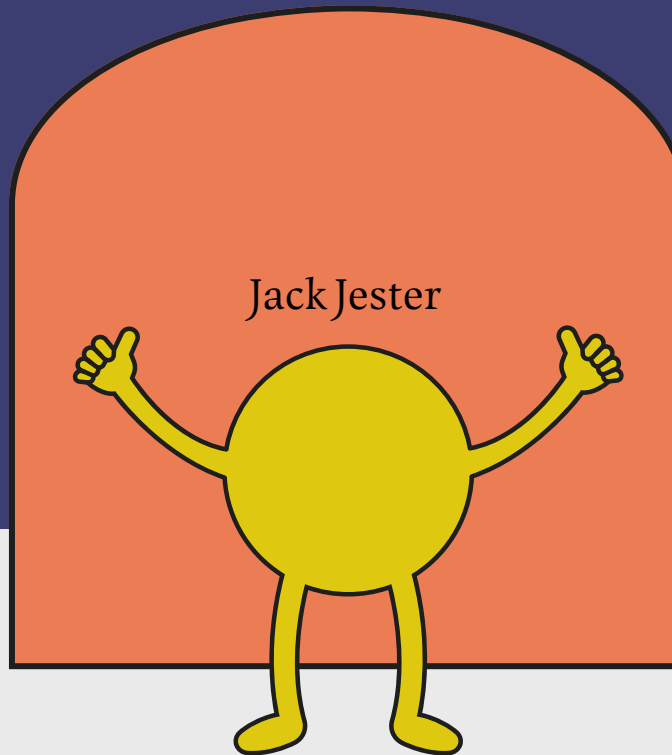

Finally, after days of laughter and adventure, they stood before the grand entrance to the treasure chamber. Grumblebeard, his grumpy demeanour transformed by their infectious joy, bid them farewell and vanished into the forest.

With a mischievous grin, Jack carefully picked the lock on the chamber door and pushed it open. The sight that greeted him left him speechless. The treasure box of King Bartholomew was not filled with gold and jewels, as he had anticipated, but with a treasure far greater—bundles of colourful joke books and comedy scripts from the king's personal collection.
